Jake woke up from the sunlight
beaming through the window.

He begins his morning with a yawn and a stretch. Then he jumps on the bed and wakes up his mom and dad.

He knows the morning routine and waits anxiously at the door while Mom and Dad get his leash and collar. They head down the stairs to go outside with Jake in the lead

Jake loves being outside and also loves his morning walks. Although breakfast is on his mind, so he rushes to get his business done and get home.

Breakfast is done and it's time for Mom to leave for work. "Bye Jake!" says Mom.

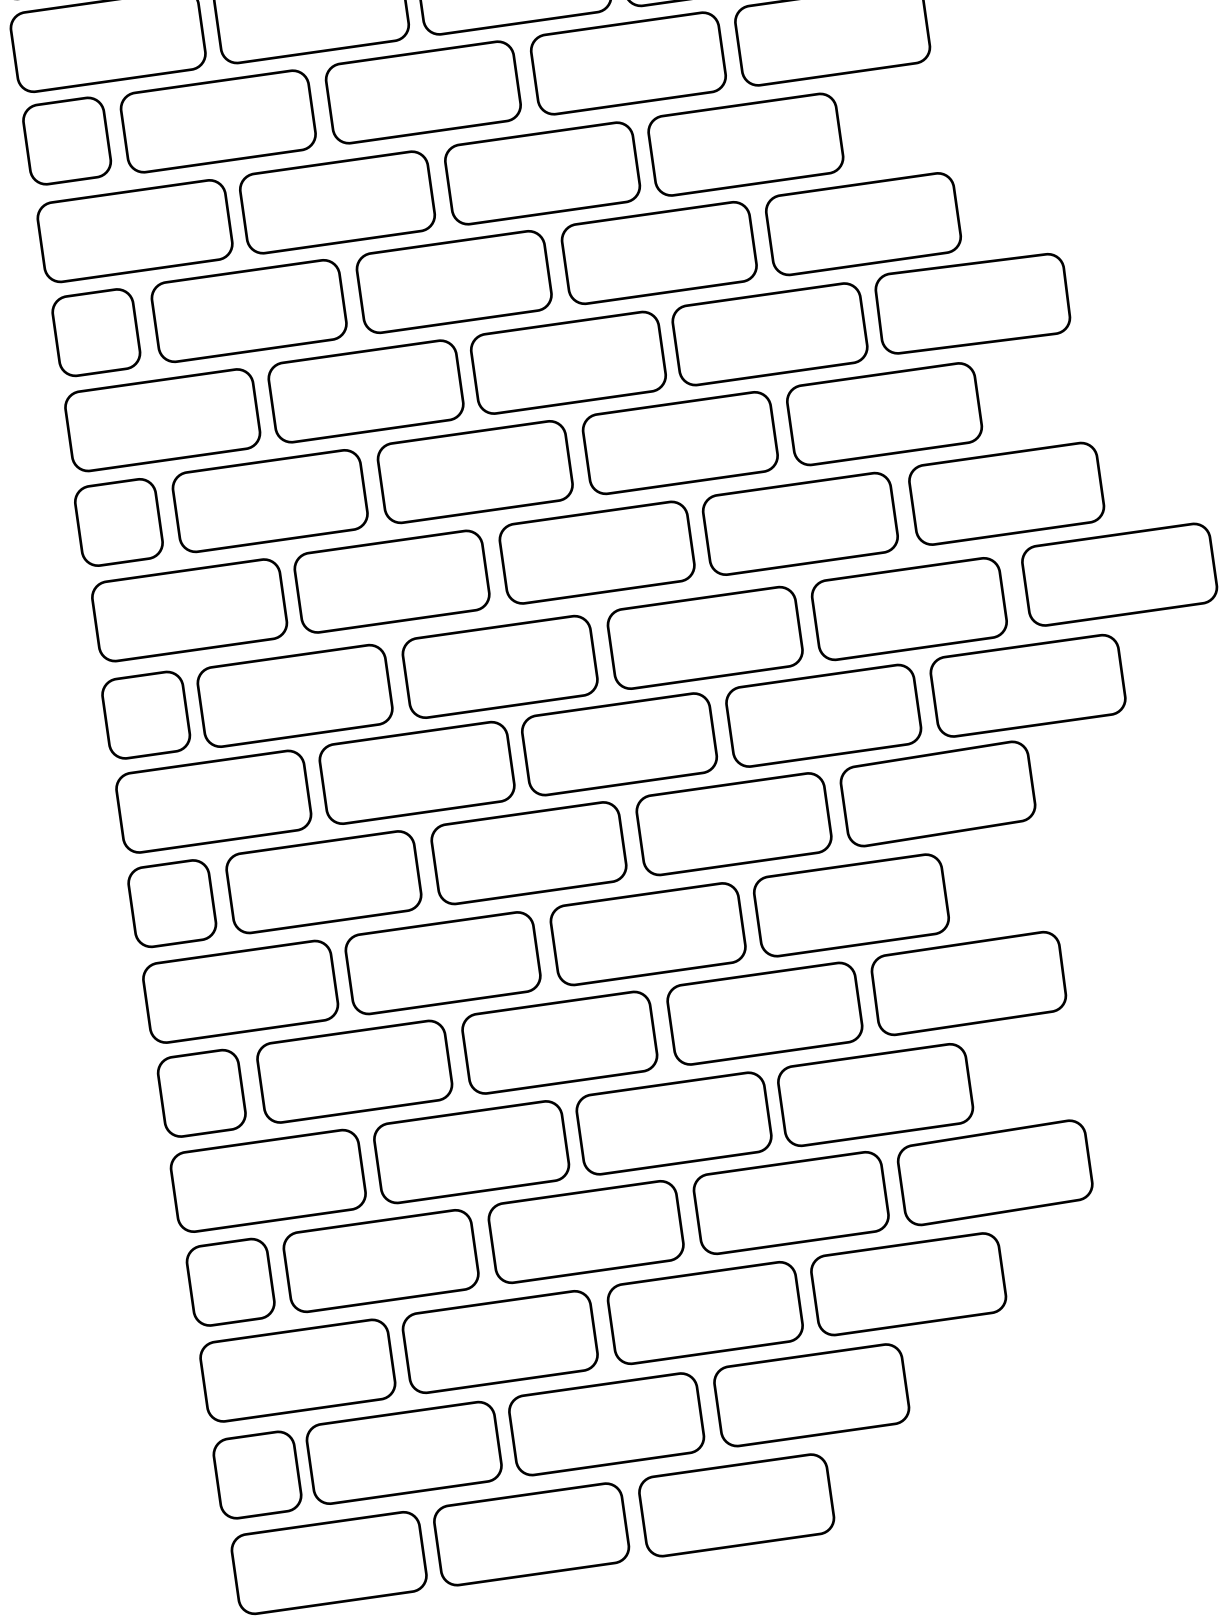

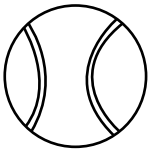

An illustration of a city skyline. On the left is a tall, brown skyscraper with many windows. To its right are several other buildings, including a large grey one with a triangular cutout and a red one with blue windows. In the foreground, a grey bridge railing with vertical posts runs diagonally across the frame. The text is centered on the bridge railing.

Jake's Dad decides it's a nice day to go to the park to throw the ball.

Dad throws the tennis ball and Jake chases after it and brings it back! Jakes never tires of playing fetch.

But this time, Dad overthrew the ball and Jake bolts after it. But this time, Dad overthrew the ball and Jake bolts after it.

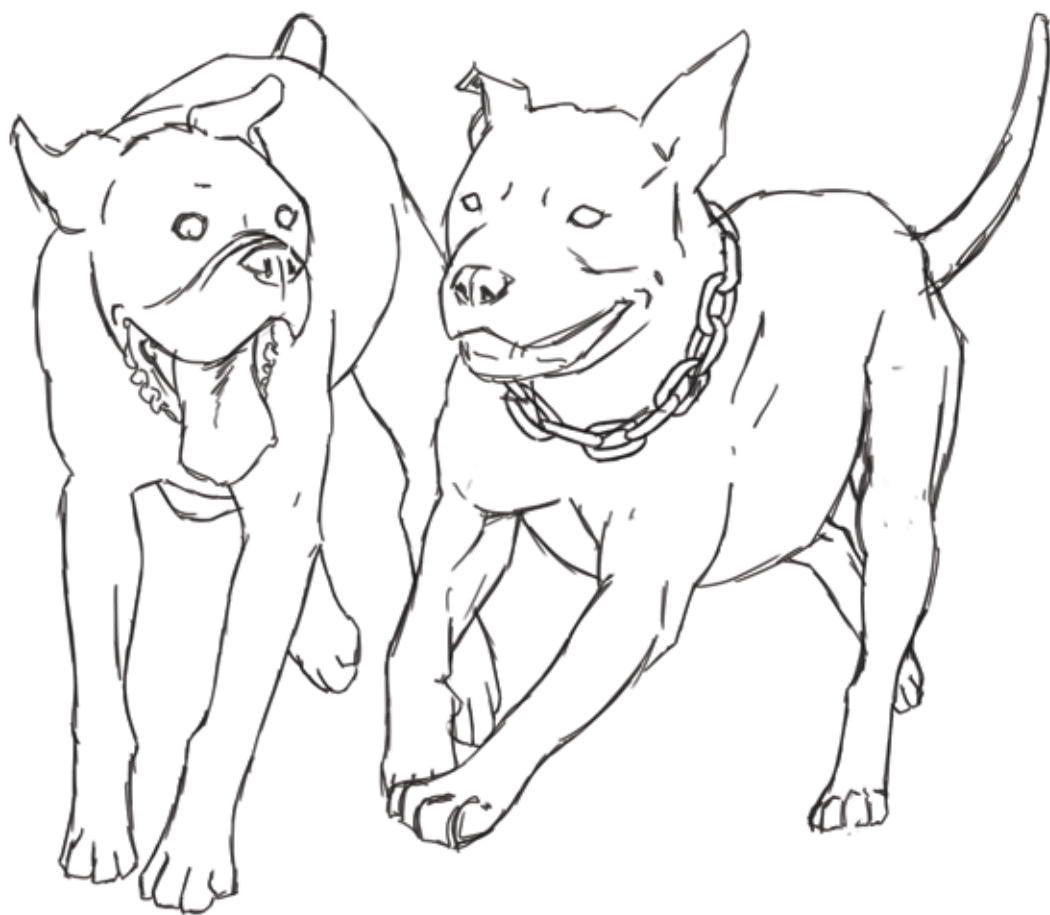

Jake tracks down the ball, but someone else got there first.

It was his good friend, Timber!

Jake is so excited to see Timber, that he quickly forgets about his Dad, and the two of them take off running and playing.

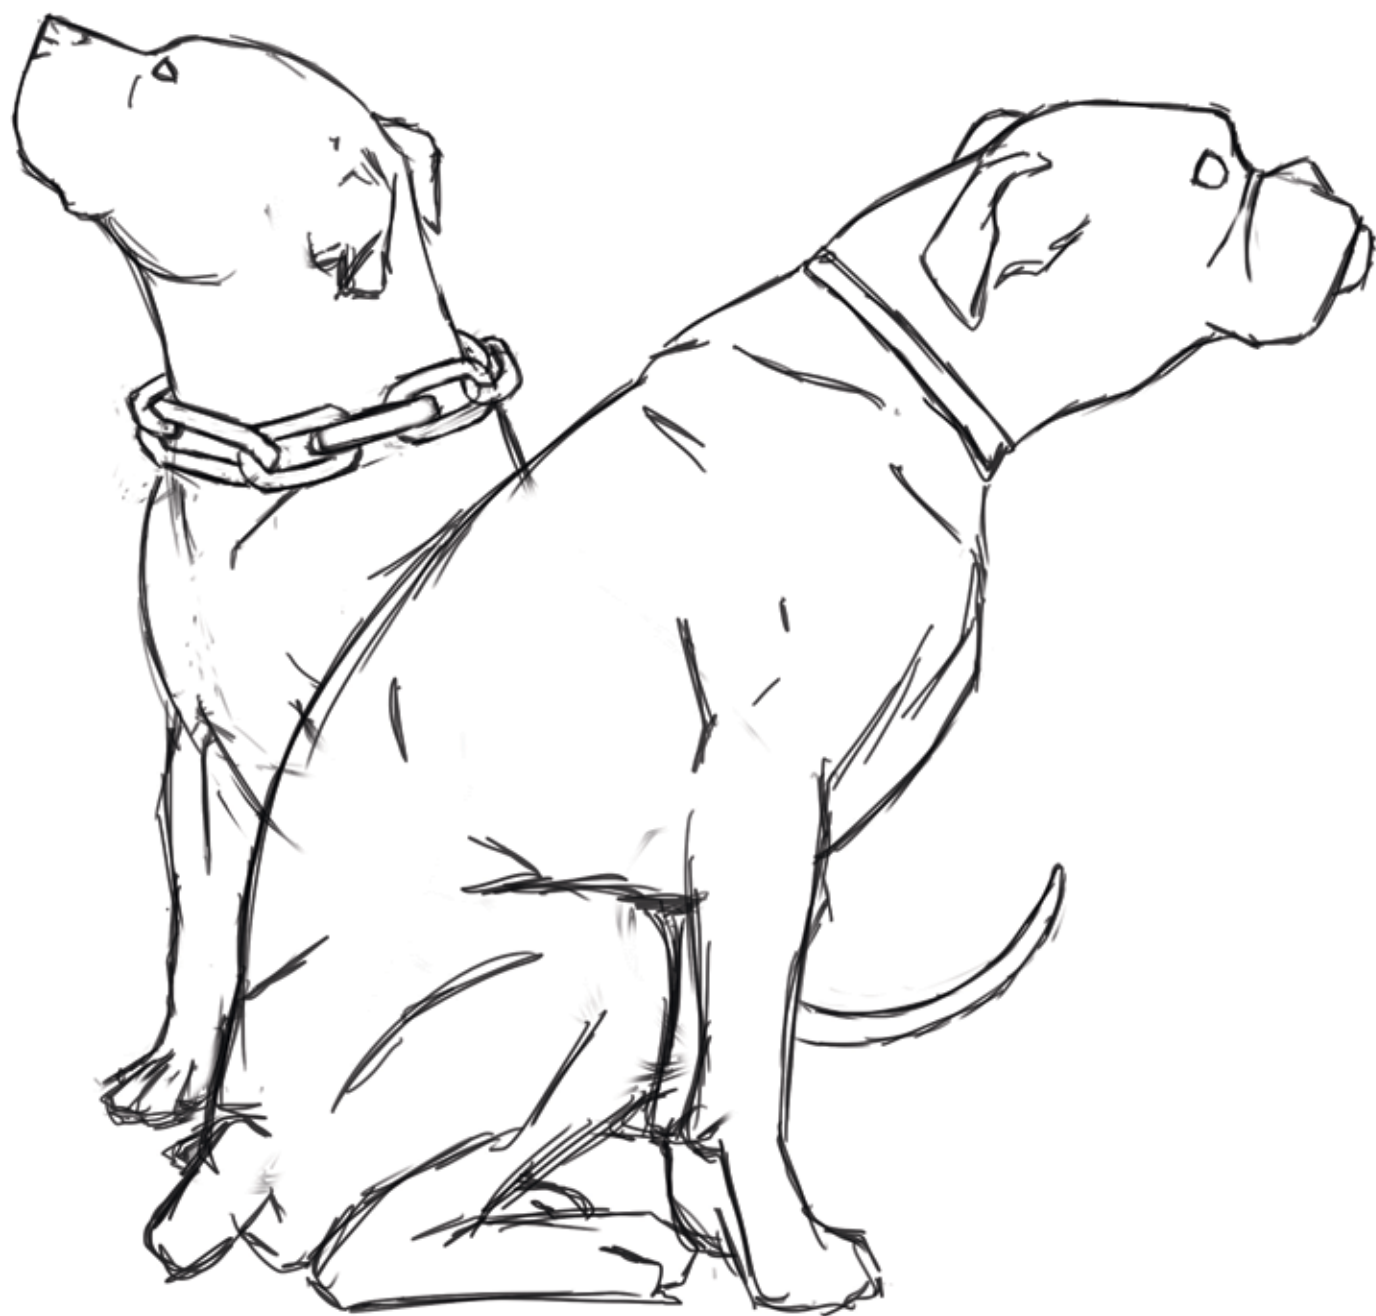

They roam through the streets of the North End, passing all of the local stores and beyond the neighborhood.

He is so happy that he forgets to stop before the crosswalk, and barely misses a car!

After the close encounter with the car and all of the running and playing, Jake realizes that he didn't know where he and Timber were.

He looks around frantically and sees a map. Jake and Timber find the “YOU ARE HERE” spot on the map and could see how far they have strayed from home. The journey home begins.

CITY INFORMATION

But first, they each had to make a pit stop to mark their territory.

They walk through the Commons...

... and then they get lost in the foot traffic
of the Financial District.

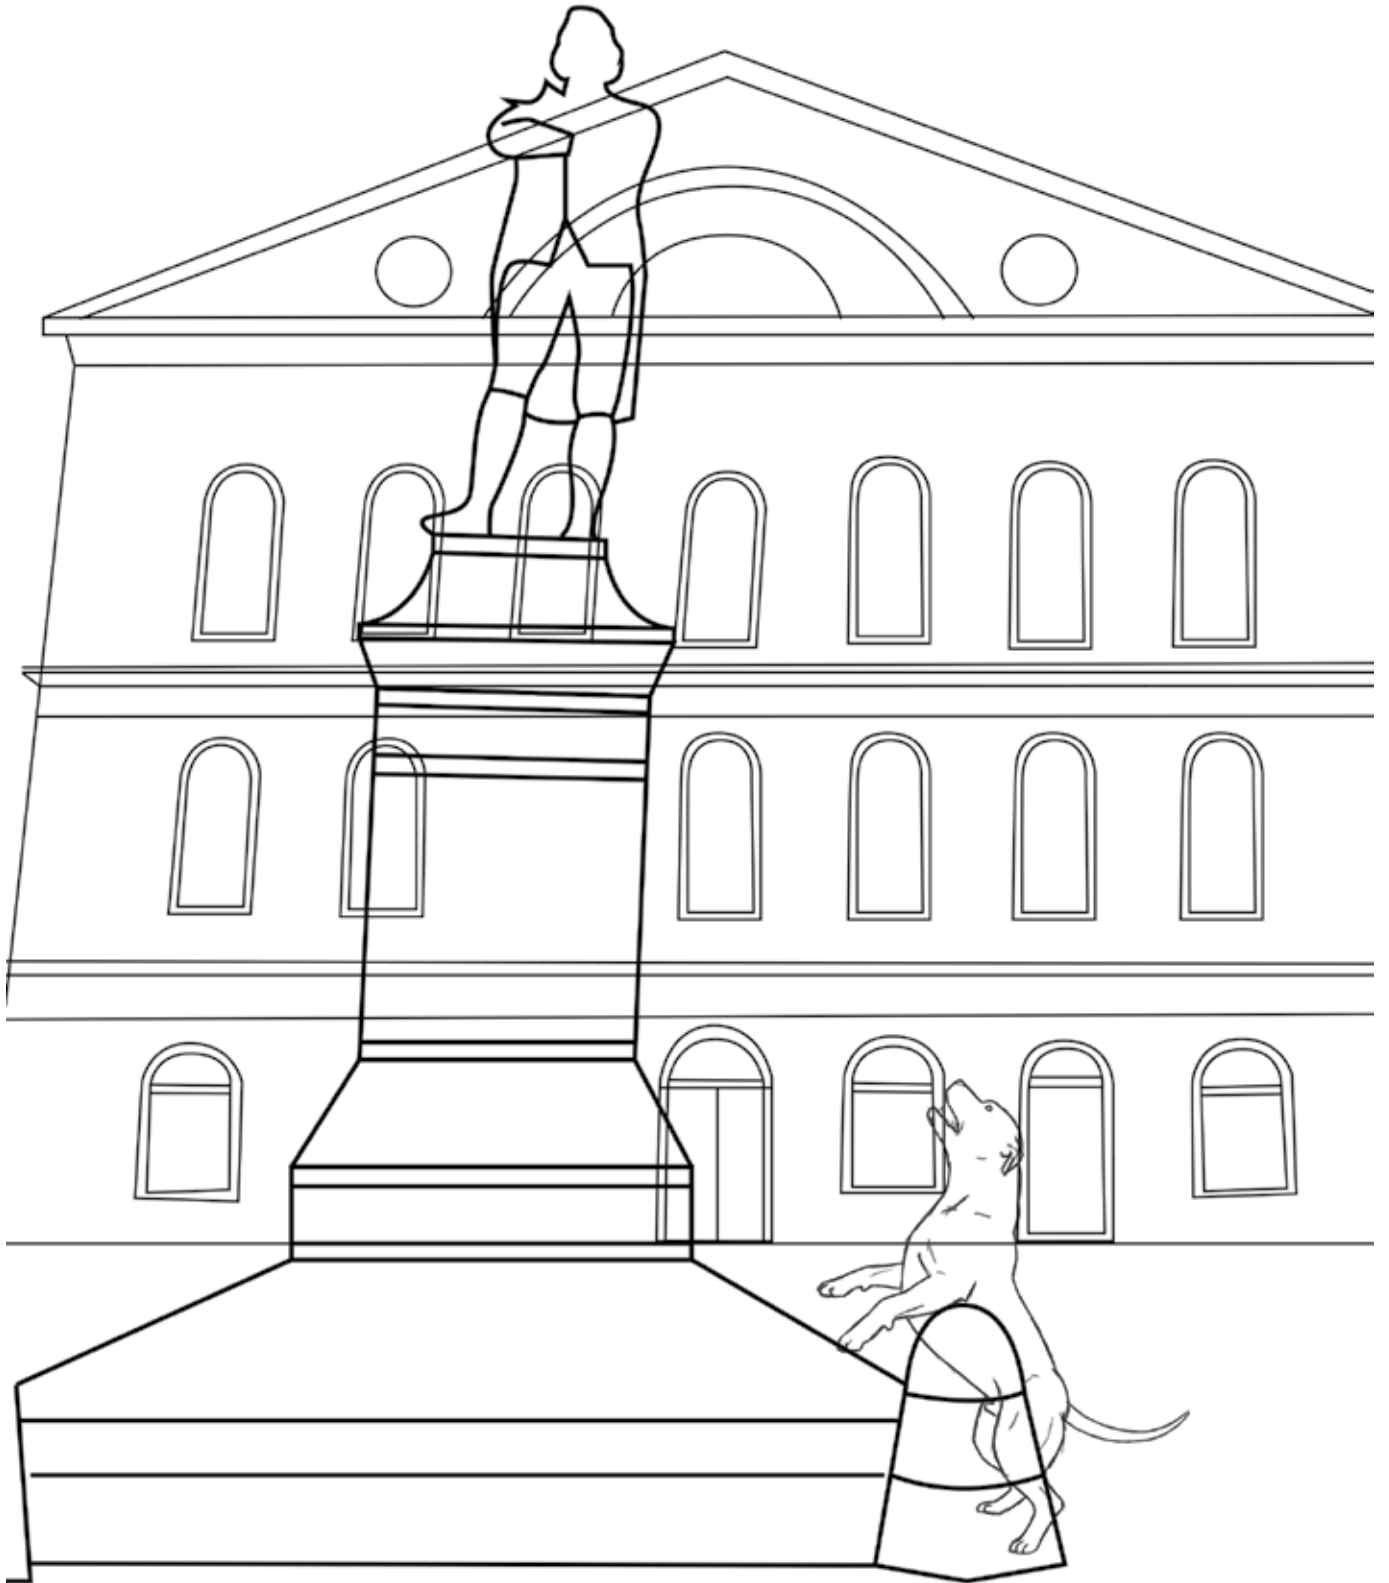

Jake and Timber ask a Police Officer for directions and he quickly points them in the direction of the Fire Station, which is on the way home.

They now see a Firefighter; he points them toward Faneuil Hall– even closer to home!

When they finally get to the Paul Revere Statue, they are relieved to see familiar surroundings, yet their dads are nowhere to be found.

Feeling a little discouraged and tired, Jake's ears are rung with the comforting voice of his dad, calling his name.

Jake ran as fast as he could to his dad and gives him plenty of kisses to show how relieved and happy he is to see him. Jake and Timber arrive home safe.

When Mom gets home, Jake and his Dad look at her with guilty faces. “How was your day today?” She asks.

Jake and his dad promise not to tell his mom of Jake’s adventure, but he learned a valuable lesson. Jake feels safe with his Mom and Dad, wandering off was not such a good idea.

What will tomorrow bring...
